Please empty your trash on your computer. Your google drive is doing a little overtime because a few things were inadvertently deleted when I was working on Sammy's computer. It should be fine. But to prevent everyones computer from having a heart attack, please empty your trash. You may see some performance issues while the drive repairs itself. If it becomes disruptive and you need to get something done, you can pause the drive by clicking on the drive icon and in the drop down menu there are three little dots. Click on the dots and there is an option to pause.
